

For He is high, and He is holy, and you cannot worship Him with man's means. Yea, you dare not come into His presence in your own holiness or righteousness. But you must come into His presence robed in His righteousness. Come into His presence clean and holy but thou canst not make thy self clean neither can thou make thou self holy. For man alone is an utter failure. But you can come into His presence because His blood cleaneth you from all sin. You can come into His presence because His blood has atoned for your sins and all are washed away. And you are made unto your God kings and priest. So, put on your robe of righteousness and enter into His presence with thanks giving and allow the Holy Spirit, who dwells in your spirit to teach you to be reverent. Yea come not with the clamorings of the flesh. There shall come a time, in fact the day has now arrived, that you will learn to worship me saith the Lord of Host on a different level in which you have worshiped. Even learn to praise me on a different level in which you have learned to praise. For so much of that which has been in that manifestation among you has only been in the flesh. But now you will come into the broad place of the Spirit. Come with a reverence. Come with a humility. Come with a desire to fellowship with me. Come not in arrogance. Come not in the energy of the flesh. But rather come with a humble spirit. Crucifying the flesh. Not letting it dominate you or even endeavor to worship me as such. But come in a spirit and oh that can only be as you respond unto to the Holy Spirit. For the Holy Spirit knoweth the mind of God and He will lead you in the way even in worship as the Father would have you to worship Him. For He is high and He is holy. And you come not unto Him as you would come unto man. And you give not Him applause as you would man. For you must not bring Him down on the level of man but you must come up on the level where He is in holiness and reverence. Worshipping Him and Him alone. Worshipping Him and Him alone. Worshipping Him and Him alone. And then shall the spirit of God descend upon you like mighty rain from heaven. Mighty rivers shall flow out of you and ye shall be known as a reverent worshipful people. And ye shall be known as a supernatural people. For the supernatural will be ordinary with you. And it shall be said of you as it was said of those in days gone by they that have turned the world up side down are come hither also. Hallelujah
